If you're still wondering how China can help your practice, read
Tour Leader and Boulder Clinic Director Joanne Neville's thoughts:

"It really opened my eyes to what acupuncture and Chinese medicine can really do when it is an integral part of the mainstream paradigm of health care."

"The twenty story Heilongjiang University of Chinese Medicine 2nd Affiliated Hospital, situated in the middle of Harbin is widely known throughout China for their expertise in treating neurological disorders including brain infarctions, brain hemorrhages, post stroke, Bell's palsy, shingles and many other disease processes."

"In speaking with our translator Eddie, who has served SWAC students on several previous trips, he said we were lucky because we were exposed to so many more departments and hospital directors."

"I believe that anyone studying Chinese medicine should make a point of experiencing the wealth of information and the culture of the country that created the medicine they are devoting their lives to."
